PRESENT STOP-GAP SETUP IS STUDIED

Experts May Be Hired Here To Write City Zoning Law

Circleville city council Tuesday tinkered with the idea of hiring outside experts to draft a zoning plan for the city.

Councilman George Crites estimated that the job could be done for about $1,500.

"We don't want an elaborate plan drawn up, something that we could never afford to put into operation," he said. "All we want is a simple, workable zoning plan."

Crites broached the matter to his colleagues by inquiring into what powers the present city planning commission has.

It was explained that the commission was created as a stopgap measure until a zoning ordinance could be drawn up and presented to council.

The commission was created in April, 1949. And on April 19 of the same year the city fathers passed a blanket ordinance requiring builders to obtain permits before erecting new buildings or making alterations and additions to existing structure.

PRESIDENT OF Council Ben Gordon pointed out that at present the city has no zoning ordinance, and, consequently, no law to prevent anyone from constructing a business building in a residential area.

This was disputed by Service Director John Neuding, who said that in a recent meeting the commission was informed that a zoning commission is permitted by state law to control all building within a city and for three miles outside.

"But all we have now is a planning commission. It was set up to be the forerunner of a zoning commission, pointed out Councilman Ray Cook.

"The ordinance that we passed gives the commission planning power to do certain things as long as the other guy (person applying for a permit) is not so perverse that he will object."

Cook said he believed engineers living outside Circleville would have to be hired to draw up the actual zoning plan, "simply because anyone living here who tries to do the job is susceptible to brickbats. And even if we bring strangers in to do the job, we'll probably have to get the National Guard to go around with them while they set their lines."

CRITES SAID HE had been told it would be possible for council to pass a blanket ordinance to stop all building without special permission from council until zoning could be accomplished.

"We'll probably have to call in an outside firm to do the job, and it will take a little money. But in the meantime, if it is possible to pass a blanket ordinance, I think we should do it," he declared.

Crites added that several years ago the Moose Lodge established residence next to his home on South Court street.

"It lowered the value of my property fifty percent. And we have no ordinance to stop that. If there is any way to put a blanket zoning ordinance on

Senators Fear Meat Shortage

WASHINGTON, May 2—The Senate Agriculture Committee today declared that the beef-price rollback will create "a severe meat famine" and unanimously asked Price Stabilizer DiSalle to rescind the order.

In a resolution demanding that the action be cancelled, the committee said that the order will lead to meat rationing. DiSalle's order would roll back wholesale beef prices, effective May 9.

The committee said that farmers now are rushing cattle to market that ought to be kept longer in the feed lots and fed to heavier weights.

Temperature Goes Up; So Do Legislative Tempers

COLUMBUS, May 2—Legislative tempers rose with the thermometer today as the undercover house-senate fight over Ohio school financing broke into the open and charges and denials were hurled in the battle over congressional redistricting.

The house in general and two of its committees in particular were blasted bitterly on the senate floor for "aimless delay" in considering school financing by Sen. Al Daniels (R-Greenfield), chairman of the senate education committee and long-time spokesman for the school lobby.

On the house side, Rep. John C. Smith (D-Montgomery) charged that "pressure from Republican bosses" was holding up action on "an agreed and non-partisan" redistricting bill. The charge was denied promptly by Rep. George Kirkpatrick (R-Knox), chairman of the subcommittee which was supposed to have reached the agreement.

The house elections committee met meanwhile with redistricting supposed to be on its agenda—but failed to receive the controversial subcommittee report.

BIG HEARING DUE THURSDAY

House Urged To Conduct Own Mac Investigation

WASHINGTON, May 2—House Republican Leader Martin called on the House Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees today to launch an open investigation of their own of foreign and military policies to match the Senate's closed inquiry.

The Massachusetts Republican wrote the chairmen of the two committees that "the House and the American people should accept nothing less than the full light of truth."

Martin said that the Senate committees' decision to conduct closed hearings on the dismissal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Allied policies "places the House of Representatives in a strange position." The Senate probe begins tomorrow.

He declared that if the Senate committees only make public "edited" versions of testimony, the House cannot "fulfill its function" of obtaining facts for the people.

MARTIN ALSO asserted that it is the "specified constitutional duty of the House to originate all appropriations" as well as taxes and he added:

"These are no ordinary times, and this is no ordinary inquiry. We are at grips with a question so fundamental that it affects not only the security of our people, but the future peace of the world."

Meanwhile, the Senate Armed Services-Foreign Relations Committees awaited word from Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, explaining the manner in which the Wake Island conference between MacArthur and President Truman was recorded. The committee was still holding the transcript of the conference and did not plan to make it public until Bradley had explained how it was compiled.

One of the papers made available to the joint committee conducting the investigation is a Joint Chiefs of Staff document dated Jan. 12, 1951, which Republicans claim will prove MacArthur's contention that the Joint Chiefs backed his policies.

Chairman Russell, (D) Ga., disclosed that the compilation from the Pentagon is in a paraphrased form, to protect the nation's military codes.

The Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees begin with their dramatic inquiry tomorrow behind closed doors, with MacArthur the first witness. He will be followed by Defense Secretary Marshall.

Russell explained that the committee did not receive a "copy" of the Jan. 12 communication and explained:

"Certain portions of it are and will have to remain secret."

BUT RUSSELL SAID the committee definitely will have a method of "checking the original documents if any are challenged." He said he has suggested to the Defense Department that a subcommittee of perhaps two members, one from each party, be permitted to examine any original document about which there is a question.

Republicans applauded but Democrats generally remained silent on the Korean report of Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, which was released yesterday by the committee after four years on the secret list.

The 1947 report warned that North Korean Reds were a potential threat to South Korea and urged that a South Korean "scouts" force be built up to meet any invasion.

Wedemeyer predicted that Russia would withdraw her forces from North Korea to induce an American withdrawal from the south, thus clearing the way for Communist domination.

The United States did not withdraw until after Russia pulled out, but never created the kind of force Wedemeyer proposed.

The White House said today that President Truman personally authorized declassification of the Wedemeyer and Wake Island reports to aid senators in their investigation of MacArthur's dismissal and Far East policy.

BOARD ACTION PONDERED

Cafe Group Chief Outlines View On City Health Law

Circleville city council Tuesday received a policy statement from the Ohio State Restaurant Association on the subject of health inspections for local restaurants.

The policy was set forth in a letter from Robert R. Williams, executive vice-president of the association.

The letter was addressed to President of Council Ben Gordon and was made known to the city fathers by Councilman E. L. Montgomery, chairman of the health committee of council.

Montgomery passed the letter on to his colleagues with the comment:

"This letter reminds me of what the late President Calvin Coolidge replied when asked what the preacher had talked about in church."

"He talked about sin," Coolidge answered. "He was against it."

Montgomery said after Tuesday's meeting that he was toying with the idea of asking Circleville board of health to adopt a resolution requiring restaurant inspections here. Council, thus, would be bypassed.

THE NORTHEAST councilman said that a resolution by the board of health would be just as binding as an ordinance passed by council, would pack just as much wallop.

The proposal to pass an ordinance requiring inspection of restaurants was made by Montgomery last month.

In his letter Williams stated that the policy of the association "is essentially the same as the Ohio State Medical Association."

Assuming the health committee of council to be acting in the interest of public health, the letter says:

"Undoubtedly the board of health and the health committee will be interested in having all persons coming in contact directly or indirectly with the public submit to physical examinations."

Besides restaurant employees, such persons as doctors, dentists and assistants, and nurses would be included in the group that would submit to the exams, the letter says.

Then it adds, "Unfortunately, we have not found doctors or their assistants willing to submit

INFLATION TIDE FEARED

Controls May Be Lifted In 1953, Johnston Says

WASHINGTON, May 2—Economic Stabilizer Eric Johnston declared today federal controls may be lifted in 1953, but warned a new tide of inflation will hit the country before Christmas.

But Johnston was also sharply critical of "fear merchants" who, he declared, are "trying to sell the fear of a depression." He said "they foresee us producing ourselves straight into a bust" and added nothing could be farther from the truth.

Johnston, speaking before the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, called for "the sternest kind of steps" to combat the new inflation threat stemming from increased defense spending later this year.

A past president of the chamber, Johnston said the economy has experienced "only a flash-food of inflation" and added:

"Rising headwaters for a new inflation flood are churning toward us from upstream. By Christmas time, our defense production will be really rolling."

"IT WILL BE" augmenting the national purchasing power on a lavish scale. By the first quarter of next year, the rate of national income will be $37.5 billion more than that in the first quarter of this year.

"That 12 percent increase is a tremendous inflationary force."

The economic stabilizer pointed out that the nation has embarked on a two-year production expansion plan that will result in a "production potential for civilian goods that dwarfs all going records." He said:

"And we can be rid of controls. I have said it before—many times—but I repeat it now, that the sooner we can toss out controls and the sooner my agency can close up shop, the more I'll rejoice."

William H. Ruffin, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, criticized the establishment of the new Wage Stabilization Board, labeling it "a Frankenstein monster that will assuredly defeat any effective stabilization." He said:

"The United Labor Policy Committee has set in motion a machine which—if its jurisdiction is accepted—will render genuine collective bargaining impossible. The very existence of such a board will encourage, rather than discourage, industrial disputes."

Harry Barton Dies In Home At Age Of 44

Harry Barton, prominent Circleville businessman and active in civic groups, died unexpectedly in his Watt street residence early Wednesday. He was 44.

Manager of the American Loan and Finance Co., since the office opened here in 1947, Mr. Barton had been in failing health the last several months.

Active in Circleville Kiwanis Club, Elks Lodge and American Legion, he was a member of First Methodist church and was a member of its board of stewards and auditing committee.

Vitality interested in sports, he was active in golf, hunting and fishing.

Mr. Barton, who probably had the richest Southern accent in Circleville, was born Aug. 11, 1906, in Greenfield, Tenn. He was the son of Charles and Mary Brock Barton who now make their home in Jackson, Tenn.

He was educated in Union University in Jackson and was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon

UN Ready For Second Red Assault Against Seoul

Van Fleet Says First Stab Fails

Navy Fliers Torpedo Hwachon Dam Gates

TOKYO, May 2—Lt. Gen. James A. Van Fleet announced at the Korean front today that the first phase of the Red Spring offensive has "ended in a great victory for the United Nations."

The Eighth Army chief, who heads all UN ground forces in Korea, voiced confidence that the second and possibly stronger Chinese assault, expected shortly, will also be stopped with big enemy losses.

The general made his statement during a flying visit to field corps commanders as UN patrols lashed north against battered Chinese forces above Seoul while airmen hammered Red reinforcements streaming to the front.

A Wednesday night dispatch from the west central sector quoted Van Fleet as declaring: "We have punished the Communist forces severely. The enemy has failed in the first phase of his offensive and has paid a heavy price."

"HE HAS THE" capability of hitting again as hard as before, or harder. However, I am confident that the results will be the same."

The top Allied field commander said the enemy's unsuccessful first-phase drive and the expected second installment—apparently aimed at pushing down Korea's middle—comprise "part of his announced plan to destroy us or force us into the sea."

Van Fleet's dramatic announcement that the initial wave of the Red assault has been defeated came after U. S. Navy dive bombers blasted two of the Hwachon dam's gates in a spectacular stroke to hamper a Chinese central front buildup.

Torpedo-launching skyraiders from the Carrier Princeton blasted open two of the Hwachon reservoir's sluice gates, loosening water the Reds had blocked off by closing the gates of the big Hwachon dam just inside North Korea.

As a result, the levels of the Army OKs Assist If It's Hidden On The Inside

NEW YORK, May 2—The first time Johnny Fitzpatrick tried to get into the Army was Friday the 13th.

He failed. The recruiting sergeant said a soldier has to weigh 105 pounds. Johnny barely made 101.

Yesterday the 3-year-old Johnny returned, stripped to his shorts and stepped on the scale. The indicator leap 1 to 115 pounds.

The sergeant blinked. Then he said to the triumphant redhead: "Now leave us take off those little pants."

With a "h", Johnny took off his shorts. The sergeant examined them and found them padded with 13 fishing sinkers and a three-inch strip of iron. Without the assis, Johnny hit 104.

Out he went again, to a nearby milk bar and filled up with bananas, ice cream and water.

Then it was back to the scales again. Once more the indicator swung around, and Johnny grinned.

The sergeant barked: "Wipe that smile off your face. What do you think you are, a civilian?"

Cost Of War: 62,799 Casualties

WASHINGTON, May 2—The Defense Department official list of American casualties in Korea today rose to 62,799, an increase of 1,055 over last week.

The new total includes 9,603 killed in action; 42,246 wounded, of whom 1,110 have died; and 10,950 missing. The total of dead is 10,813, including those fatally wounded and 100 of the missing who are known to have died.

Pukhan and Han river started rising again. This foiled an evident enemy scheme to ford the two streams and envelop the east flank of United Nations troops holding the Seoul defense perimeter.

Following this crippling blow, Allied land planes wrecked another 345 enemy rail cars Wednesday on a mounting air campaign to cut down a huge flow of fresh Red troops and supplies to the front.

Above the South Korean capital of Seoul, UN tank-infantry patrols rammed into Chinese troops which had withdrawn out of range of Allied firepower after the Red drive had been halted, with more than 80,000 enemy casualties.

EIGHTH ARMY announced Wednesday night that Allied patrols encountered a Red battalion northwest of the capital and a platoon to the north. The communiqué said other patrols "engaged" an unknown number of Communist troops at the gateway junction of Uijongbu, 11 miles north of Seoul.

At the east end of the 110-mile Korean battlefield, the bulletin said, a North Korean Red battalion unleashed a new attack Wednesday on UN forces east-southeast of Inju.

Along the ridge-lined central front, it was announced, the day passed with no significant contact with big Chinese forces massing for an anticipated attempt to smash down the middle of the peninsula and outflank Seoul.

Despite the damaging air attacks, the Red invaders kept pouring fresh troops, tanks, artillery and supplies into the South Korean central sector and a renewal of the enemy's stalled offensive was believed imminent.

Valentine Buys Sandwich Shop

Sale of the Mader Sandwich Shop on South Court street to Loring Valentine of 410 East Mound street has been announced here.

The sandwich shop was started by Henry L. Mader of 141 Pinckney street 15 years ago and operated up to the sale to Valentine. Mader said retirement from business was his reason for selling.

Valentine, formerly a co-owner of a local dairy, said no changes are contemplated in the operation of the candy shop at present.

Sale was handled by Donald H. Watt, local realtor.

Franklin County Humane Aide Is Speaker Here

Problems confronting Pickaway County Humane Society were discussed during a meeting held at 8 p. m. in the courthouse here.

Speaker for the evening was Tom Justice, Franklin County humane officer, who told the society that the solution to their dispute with the county commissioners on sale of dogs probably lies in a bill pending in the Ohio legislature.

He said the bill would place a flat license fee of .25 on all dogs. This, he added, should increase the revenue from sale of tags.

Basis of the society's dispute with the county commissioners is the latter's argument that revenue from sale of the dogs is needed to defray back sheep claims.

THE SOCIETY objects because the dogs are sold to vendors, who, in turn, dispose of them to laboratories for production of serums.

Mrs. Carson Horton, former secretary of the humane society, said the group's objection is pointed at sale of the dogs to vendors, rather than at selling them to scientific institutions.

Justice also discussed humane society work on a national, state and local basis.

Other business of the meeting was an election of directors. Twenty directors were elected. Previously the organization had 12 directors. Former directors were:

Fred Moeller, president; Howard White, vice-president; Mrs. Horton, secretary-treasurer; Joe Adkins Jr., John Moore, Dr. E. J. Hedges, Joe Bell, Ralph Leach, Fred Grant, Henry Reid Jr. and Richard Simkins.

Re-elected were: Reid, White, Hedges, Simkins, Grant and Bell.

New directors are Andrew Thomas, Turney Glick, Phil Smith, James Yost, Harry Graeff, Mr. Frank Bennett, Mrs. Charles Gilmore, Mrs. William Radcliff, Mrs. Ned Groom, Mrs. Ruth Athey, Mrs. Phil Smith, and "whoever is elected chairman of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce."

Officers will be elected during the first meeting of the new board, tentatively scheduled for the first Monday in June.

The Tuesday meeting was the first of its kind open both to members and the general public since the organization was founded in 1946. It received its charter in 1947.

Weather Outlook For Month Noted

The Weather Bureau's 30-day outlook for May calls for temperatures averaging below seasonal normals west of the Continental Divide and generally above normal over the eastern two-thirds of the country, except in New England where near normal is indicated. Greatest negative departures are expected in the southwest and greatest positive departures over the Upper Mississippi Valley.

Rainfall amounts are expected to be above normal over most of the western half of the country except for subnormal in the Pacific Northwest. In the northeast and in the lake region subnormal amounts are indicated, while other areas east of the Mississippi will have near normal rainfall.

Congratulations to Bud Brehmer who has been elected President of the local Rotary Club for the coming year. Bud is a hard worker and a fine leader. Circleville will profit from the activities of the Rotary Club under the direction of Bud.

the restaurant association adopted a resolution approving the recommended ordinance.

AN ORDINANCE recommended by the U. S. Public Health Service would regulate the inspection of eating and drinking establishments, the issuing, suspension and revocation of permits for the operation of such establishments, the enforcement of the ordinance and the fixing of penalties. It would also prohibit the sale of adulterated, misbranded or unwholesome food and drink.

With regard to licensing local restaurants, Williams says:

"A license fee is a tax by whatever name called and we frown upon any group singling out restaurants for licensing when other businesses and professions which should be subjected to the scrutiny of the board of health go scot free.

"At no time have I heard of a board of health charging doctors or dentists licensing fees to permit them to carry on their operations in a community."

On April 17, Montgomery had suggested licensing local restaurants as a means of obtaining funds to pay for the inspections.

Councilman Ray Anderson objected that it would be "double taxation."

Divorce Ends 1941 Marriage

A divorce has been awarded in Pickaway County common pleas court to Mildred B. Kolsbun from John B. Kolsbun.

Judge William D. Radcliff found the defendant guilty of extreme cruelty. The couple was married Feb. 3, 1941, in Columbus. They have no children.

Fayette County Man Named New Associate Agent

Robert Schwart of Washington C. H. has been named Pickaway County associate extension agent.

Schwart was beginning his duties with the county extension office Wednesday during a "kitchen tour" of county farm homes.

The new associate agent is a graduate of Ohio State university, with a master's degree in agricultural economics.

Schwart is married and has three children, two girls and a boy. He served with the armed forces during World War II.

The new associate agent expects to move his family into Circleville when he finds available quarters.

Schwart has been named to replace Merle Thomas as associate agent in the county. Thomas has been promoted to the extension office in Xenia, where he is to be groomed for a county agent's job.

Thomas is officially to be relieved of duties here June 1, although he will begin to learn his duties with the Xenia office this month.

Weldon Owens Are Parents Of First May Baby

Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Owens of 675 East Mound street are the parents of Circleville's first baby born in May.

Their six-pound 11-ounce daughter was born at 1:10 p. m. Tuesday in Berger hospital and has been named Deborah Kay.

The baby is the Owens' first child. The father is driver of Pickaway County Bookmobile.

The parents may call at the office of The Circleville Herald and receive a certificate which entitles them to the following gifts: A savings account with $1 from Circleville Savings and Banking Co.; a carton of 60-watt lamps from Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co.; a gift from the baby department of Penney's Store and a free three-month subscription to the Herald.

Friends may call in Defenbaugh Funeral Home after 7 p. m. Wednesday.

Members of Circleville Kiwanis Club are to meet in the home of Virgil Cress at 8 p. m. Wednesday and call in a body in the funeral home.

Arrangements are being made to take the body to Jackson, Tenn., for services and burial.

Solon Parades Fashions Again

Circleville city council Tuesday was left gasping by the sartorial splendor of one of its members.

Councilman Walden Reichelderfer appeared for the legislative session clad in a shirt described by a colleague as, "green. At least, it turns out to be green if you can keep looking long enough."

The picture of a snarling panther graced the front of the garment.

"I like it," smiled Reichelderfer. He had sox to match.

It was the second council meeting that the red-headed solon displayed the latest in male fashions.

the town, we should do it," he said.

City Solicitor George Gerhardt pointed out that only in the older sections of Circleville would zoning be a problem. He said that new additions to the town are protected by restrictive clauses in property deeds.

Work of the planning commission was praised by President Gordon, and his words were echoed by Crites, who said the commission has been collecting about $200 a month from building permits.

GERHARDT WARNED the legislators that zoning is a "job for experts." He said that zoning rules have been the basis of a long list of law suits.

On the recommendation of Gerhardt council decided to let the planning commission find out what it would cost to call in outside engineers to draw up a zoning plan.

With regard to a blanket zoning law, the present planning commission was given considerable power in 1949.

Amid cries that it smacked of "temporary dictatorship" and was "too hard on the little fellow," the city fathers in that year passed a blanket ordinance giving wide powers to the commission.

Mayor Thurman I. Miller had appointed Leslie D. May, Louis H. Mebs, Paul Johnson, and William Weldon as members of the commission.

The blanket ordinance, according to council's 1949 pronouncements, was to remain in effect until the planning commission worked out a zoning plan for Circleville, dividing the city into factory, residential and business districts.

Robert Adkins, then a councilman, said:

"THIS ORDINANCE is a blanket one making it mandatory for builders to apply for a permit. It will protect everyone in Circleville."

He explained that the ordinance gave the commission every authority in the books to regulate zoning.

Later, on June 7, 1949, the city fathers passed another bill putting teeth into the ordinance. Section two of the ordinance furnishes the teeth. It reads, in part:

"Whoever violates, disobeys, neglects or refuses to comply with the provisions of the planning commission shall be, upon conviction, deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than $5 nor more than $50."

Each day of violation, disobedience, omission, neglect or refusal "shall be deemed a separate offense."

Chillicothean Is Injured In Cycle Accident

A Chillicothe motorcycle rider was injured seriously Tuesday afternoon near Williamsport when his motorcycle and an auto collided.

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells said the mishap occurred at about 5:30 p. m. on Route 22, a half mile west of Williamsport.

Injured in the crash was Earl Stevens, 27, of Chillicothe, who was travelling west when the accident happened.

Patrolman Wells said the Stevens motorcycle and an auto driven east by Harold E. Jones, 26, of Washington C. H. sideswiped.

The motorcycle plunged into a ditch to its right, Wells said, throwing the rider.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

MacArthur vs. Chiefs

Pending congressional investigation, a minority of editors reserves opinion on the extent of possible past agreements between General MacArthur and the Joint Chiefs of Staff concerning Far Eastern policy. A majority of editors feels now that any such agreements were limited to hypothetically desirable military strategy, justifiably rejected by the Chiefs of Staff in their responsibility to consider possible effects of political decisions on military situations. But a minority fears now that our Chiefs of Staff have been unduly influenced, in over-all appraisals, by American and Allied civil leaders.

AUGUSTA (Ga.) Chronicle (Ind. Dem.): "General MacArthur fired one oratorical shot designed to stir up a furor in Washington and elsewhere when he said that his policy in the Far East has been supported by... our own Joint Chiefs of Staff. The American people will certainly want to know why there has been a change of heart... in the military... echelons. The advice of the highest military authorities being ignored in order to appease the diplomats who in turn seem bent on appeasing our Communist enemies?"

CHICAGO Tribune (Ind.): "What can that mean, except that the nation's greatest military man was overruled by Truman, by Secretary of State Acheson, by the state department appeasers who think that Communists can be jollied into good behavior, by the British foreign office, which seeks the preservation of its Asiatic colonial interests and its trade, and by the United Nations, that organization of global microwbers, which spends its time, as the Korean conflict goes on and on, always in the hope that 'something will turn up.'"

ASHEVILLE (N.C.) Citizen (Ind. Dem.): "Two senate committees will pry into the record of the Pacific proconsulship. Those who have seen the record, or claim to have seen it, find it full of dynamite. From off-the-record sessions with newspapermen it would seem at this time that the Joint Chiefs of Staff were in constant conflict with MacArthur. ... Some say that the issue is less than Truman vs.

MacArthur; that the initiative in the celebrated firing came not from the President or any civil authority; that Acheson did not know of it until several hours after the decision was reached."

RICHMOND (Va.) News Leader (Ind.-Dem.): "General MacArthur's statement was so carefully phrased that it has been possible for his supporters to say that he has code numbers and copies of military documents to support it. ... What is immediately necessary is for the country to be sure that the Korean campaign is actually being conducted, insofar as our military capabilities and the national security everywhere are concerned, in accordance with the best judgment of the joint chiefs of staff. ... It is shocking... that the question should ever have been raised. ... There should be no delay in settling it. ..."

JOPLIN (Mo.) Globe (Ind.): "It is logical to recall the exact words of General MacArthur. ... He did not state it as an absolute fact that the chiefs of staff believed as he did. He said it was his understanding that they did. In the second place he said it was his understanding that from a military standpoint they agreed with him. He was eliminating any political standpoint. The chiefs of staff might have agreed with him militarily yet disagreed so strongly from a political standpoint as to believe he ought to be replaced."

SAN DIEGO Tribune-Sun (Rep.): "This is not mere quibbling over words. It is an arrow straight at the heart of a national controversy which reaches far outside the usual interest sphere of the nation's military leaders. ... It represents an abandonment of the military concept, which is the rightful area of interest for the joint chiefs, and acceptance of a political concept. Who caused our military advisers to do this? What powerful influence was brought to bear to force them to abandon the judgments dictated by professional training and experience?"

ATLANTA Constitution (Dem.): "Political aspects must be included in military planning. The top men in our military department are not nearly as confident as Gen. MacArthur that Russia would stay out if we loaden the war to an attack on China. ... Their thinking is that until the Russians allow bombers and fighters to participate in great numbers, we should not bomb north of Korea. We keep forgetting. ... The Russians have not allowed the Chinese to bomb our buildups, depots and ports in South Korea. ... This is not appeasement. It is political planning and it must always go along with military strategy."

Parley For Local CAP Due May 10

Cincinnati's proposed Civil Air Patrol squadron will hold its final organizational meeting May 10.

Meeting Monday evening in Elsea Airport hangar, about 60 adult and cadet members scheduled the May 10 parley after adding several new candidates.

Officials of the group said they believed that the last few necessary signups will be secured by the time of the next meeting.

When the required roster is secured, then the local group will be eligible for a CAP squadron charter and will start special training for cadets.

So hopeful are the adults in the group that they are planning to serve refreshments during the May 10 meeting.

Monday night's meeting also brought special training for the local group. It consisted of a Navy motion picture film which detailed how weather influences tactical plans.

At the conclusion of the film, the group discussed its table of organization and proposed training program.

Meanwhile, local CAP officials said that member application blanks and fingerprint cards are available at the Elsea hangar.

New Truck License Fee Measure Is Being Studied By Committee

COLUMBUS, May 2—The Ohio house commerce and transportation committee was to consider today a substitute bill designed to produce about $5 million a year more in license fees for trucks.

The substitute bill, reported to the full committee last night by a subcommittee, provides for increase on a weight basis ranging from 20 to 25 percent.

The subcommittee thus junked Governor Lausche's proposal for a ton-mile tax—based on weight times distance carried—and also a measure sponsored by Rep. Adrian Fink (R-Cuyahoga), which would have increased truck license fees by 35 percent.

The substitute bill also requires mudguards on the rear wheels of trucks and trailers and sets up stiffer penalties for overloading. These provisions were also in the Fink proposal, with the result that the Cleveland Republican, although disappointed at the failure of the committee to adopt his measure, nevertheless branded the substitute a "good bill."

Under the subcommittee report, the truck weight tax would be increased as follows: Trucks up to 2,000 pounds, from 70 to 85 cents per hundred; 2,000 to 3,000 pounds from $1.10 to $1.35; 3,000 to 4,000 pounds, from $1.50 to $1.80; 4,000 to 5,000 pounds, from $1.70 to $2.05.

THINKING FOR ONESELF

HOW best the educational process may be continued after formal schooling is over is a problem the Ford Foundation has set itself. It does not profess to know the answers, but intends, so far as humanly possible, to find out. To this end the foundation has allotted $3,000,000 to the Fund for Adult Education for interim experimental work under a distinguished group of directors culled from educational, social and business life.

The purpose of the fund is indicated by this quotation from the 1950 report of the foundation:

"Education must meet the needs of the human spirit. It must assist persons to develop a satisfactory personal philosophy and sense of values; to cultivate tastes for music, literature and the arts, and to grow in ability to analyze problems and arrive at thoughtful conclusions."

Here the emphasis is placed upon the individual per se, not as member of a group or groups. And that is just where the emphasis belongs. The idea of adult education as a means of "educating" adults to adopt certain views to the exclusion of others is deprecated. Indoctrination is alien to the concept of this new Ford fund. What is sought is to contribute to human happiness by markedly enlarging the number of capable thinkers for themselves throughout the years.

This should result in enlarging the ability of an individual to determine which of opposite courses will better serve him at a given time and place.

MORE DAYLIGHT

EVEN the notoriously silly goose has sense enough to awaken with the sun and get about whatever business occupies a goose during the day. Aside from human beings, owls and cats, most of the remainder of creation settles down to sleep at sundown. Human beings, having invented successively the candle, the kerosene lamp, the Welsbach mantle, the Mazda bulb and now the fluorescent tube, are able to get along without the sun and thus extend their waking hours far into the night.

It is a doubtful accomplishment. Nature can not be thwarted. Night hours of wakefulness must be compensated for by extending the hours of sleep far into next day's sunlight. The resulting waste becomes more conspicuous when the earth, teetering on its axis, turns toward the sun and gets more daylight.

To offset his inability to adjust his life to earth's seasonal peculiarities, man has invented daylight saving time. DST, now in effect in nearly every metropolitan center in the nation, is a refined form of self-deception—an attempt to let the alarm clock do what we lack the fortitude to do for ourselves.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Henry L. Stimson, a Republican lawyer, had been a protegee of Elihu Root. He had served as secretary of war in the cabinet of President Taft and had been governor-general of the Philippines. At the recommendations of Root, Herbert Hoover appointed him secretary of state in 1929.

In 1940, Franklin D. Roosevelt entered upon negotiations with Alf Landon, Republican candidate for President in 1936, for Landon to join the cabinet. Landon would not join the Roosevelt administration unless he received a public and irrevocable promise from Roosevelt that he would not run for a third term. This Roosevelt would not do. In time, he appointed Stimson, secretary of war, and Frank Knox, secretary of the Navy.

Although estimable men, neither Stimson nor Knox was of sufficient importance, from a political standpoint, to achieve a unification of both parties in the third term. A cult is rising to give to Stimson the aura of superiority, with the object of attacking the stature of Hoover.

The most recent attempt is by Sarah Wambaugh, formerly of the League of Nations secretariat, who wrote an article, "War and Mr. Hoover," published in "The Christian Science Monitor." The object of this article is to show:

"The truth is that through (Hoover's) four years in office, from 1929 to 1933, there was not one of our foreign policies that did not contribute seriously to the growing international tension which so shortly culminated in World War II."

And to establish the weakness of Hoover, Miss Wambaugh seeks to show that Stimson sought to intervene in the Manchurian incident, which paved the way for World War II, and that Hoover did not let him do it. Miss Wambaugh says:

"Hoover deserves great credit for having been so early in detecting some measure of what the Soviets were up to, but he did not foresee what the Japanese were up to, or Hitler and his Nazis, or the full extent of Stalin's plans for conquest. Hoover is a master at relieving famine after war has started. But the record shows that he lacks wisdom as to how to discourage an aggressor from starting war."

The facts are:

Hoover did not refuse to consider collective sanctions to stop Japan. As a matter of fact, he considered the question very seriously. But he made the point that the League of Nations had a specific responsibility under the covenant and that the United States would join with the others, but would not go it alone.

To avoid any confusion, Hoover instituted a private inquiry as to what the British would do if the United States decided to impose economic sanctions, and if war resulted, would Great Britain join the United States in such a war? Britain said, "no!"

In a word, the British were willing for us to make war on Japan in 1931 alone.

Lord Robert Cecil was agitating for economic sanctions at the League of Nations. On Oct. 14, 1931, he received absolute instructions from Lord Reading, then foreign minister, to stop all his agitation.

DIET AND HEALTH

Babies, Young Children, Often Victims of This Disorder

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

INFANTS and young children are especially subject to attacks of diarrhea. In many cases the upset is due to infection with specific germs, and hence can be treated with one or another of the antibiotic drugs. Just as often, however, the illness seems to occur in the absence of any infection. The problem of handling it is made more difficult and is largely a matter of soothing the digestive tract until food can again be tolerated.

Recently, a number of children with this type of diarrhea were treated with good results by giving them dried bananas. In carrying out the treatment, the doctor placed the children on feedings of one tablespoon of dried banana per pound of body weight for each 24-hour period. Two ounces of water were used to dilute each tablespoon of dried banana. Enough feeding was made up for the whole day and the total amount was divided into nine feedings. Boiled water was given as often as possible between feedings.

In Skimmed Milk

At the end of two or three days, if the infant's condition was improved, the dried banana was given in skimmed milk. Older infants were also given well-cooked cereals, beef broth, mashed vegetables, and custard.

In those instances where the diarrhea was severe before treatment began, the infants were first given fluids by injection under the skin or into a vein to restore normal fluid balance.

The results obtained by the use of the dried banana were compared with those obtained with other methods of treatment, such as a period of starvation during which fluids were given by injection under the skin, followed by the use of formulas of skimmed milk, or protein milk with water or tea between feedings.

Other Method

With the banana treatment it was found that the average time required for a cure was 2.9 days. By the other method of treatment it was 5.02 days. At the end of 72 hours, out of the 20 children treated with the banana preparation, 17 were rated in good condition, and three fair. With the other method of treatment, seven children were good, seven fair, and six poor. Sixteen of the 20 children treated with the banana gained weight during the treatment.

It would seem, therefore, that dried banana has an effective substance in the treatment of diarrhea in infants and young children.

SYNOPSIS
Mack McGann, private detective, has been summoned to the New York home of Ronnie Tompkins, much-married playboy millionaire. He views a portrait gallery of ex-wives, then is started to hear his host say, "I want you to prevent my murder."

CHAPTER TWO

THE WORDS "My murder" vibrated in the shadowy study. McGann wondered for a moment, then decided that he had heard correctly.

He said, "Suppose you tell me why you expect to be murdered, Mr. Tompkins." The lamp light in his eyes was beginning to annoy him. Multimillionaire or not, he would put up with these cute eccentricities just so long. "Have you been threatened?"

The detective's host was a black and white smudge behind the desk. Now he began to talk and as the voice droned on, McGann understood many things he had overlooked in his heretofore light perusal of Ronnie Tompkins' marriage marathon.

"In the course of marrying six beautiful girls and divorcing a seventh, a man is virtually certain to make deadly enemies, wouldn't you say?"

McGann winced. "It's a lot of mothers-in-law," he admitted.

"Many deadly enemies." The voice took on a dreamy quality, soothing above the soft whisper of the fire. "Some of my brides, for instance, have not particularly welcomed my suggestion that they rush to Reno before the rice has stopped bounding. They seem to feel, somehow, that I am criticizing them personally."

McGann nodded. "They have not fully grasped the meaning of my proposals. Each one appears to think that for some strange reason I shall want to settle down with her when I never wanted to do so with anyone else. This is a display of egotism which I find particularly obnoxious." The diamond flashed again as the hand came up and touched the perfect tie.

"My great-grandfather cheated me, Mr. McGann. He made a million dollars which my grandfather foolishly allowed to grow into three million. My father completed the damage by doubling this ridiculous fortune and passing on to me six million dollars. By its own sheer force it has swelled to ten million dollars. You can imagine what that sum does to all worthwhile ambition."

McGann grinned. "It would satisfy mine."

The voice turned sharp. "You are guilty of the usual crude observation. Believe me, it is not amusing. I have always been denied what I am sure must be a man's greatest satisfaction—the proving of his worth to the world."

"Instead, somehow, I wasted years in nebulous pursuits and then launched upon my series of marriages. I don't believe I thought of it as a life's work until after the third. I had, of course, read the life of Henry the Eighth and noted that he had six wives. I felt that I could do better and have all of them true beauties besides."

"Now I am ready to set the new mark. But my enemies are growing more numerous and threatening."

McGann nodded. "You mean some of the boys you and the Tompkins bankroll outweighed?" His host's cigarette glowed. "The world has stubbornly refused to understand my motives and give me the credit to which I feel entitled. Let us take the case of the last Mrs. Tompkins. I find a vision of loveliness forced by circumstances to peddle cigarettes to a den of jackasses. I marry her—approach one bride closer to my goal—and hand her two hundred and fifty thousand dollars to go and divorce me, in addition to all expenses."

"I am amused. The girl is freed of the lowliest servitude. I have struck a blow for beauty."

"And her boy friend burns." The diamond glittered in a disdainful gesture. "I have never fully understood why the loveliest girls seem to favor an especially unprepossessing type of heel. Watch for it and you will see what I mean."

"Show me a pretty girl from the village to Fifty-Second Street and five times out of ten I will show you a lowbrow sharpie at her elbow. The traditionally heroic type couldn't afford to take her out."

McGann shifted. "That's me," he said, "the heroic homebody. Just a parlor playboy." He rose suddenly and stepped outside the circle of light. "Mind if I take a little more ice?"

The abrupt change blinded him temporarily. As his vision cleared, his host was mopping his forehead. "Not at all. None for me, thanks. I'm all caught up." When McGann was seated again his subject was pressed afresh.

"The other night, as I crossed the street at the corner down here, a car swerved and narrowly missed me. At first I put it down to the usual stupid driving of anyone out after two A. M."

McGann took a small notebook from his inside breast pocket and noted the date, Friday, Oct. 10. "Just exactly when was that, Mr. Tompkins?"

"It was—ah—Tuesday morning. A bit after two. Say ten after. I was home early, taking a little stroll before retiring."

"Then that's not a customary time for you to be around the neighborhood on foot?"

"No."

"Go on."

"Last night, I am sure that I was followed. A short thickset man and a blackhaired girl appeared in three nightclubs—the Stork, Ruban Bleu and Cafe Society Uptown, coming in always a few minutes after my party was seated."

"Ever see them before?"

"No. They are not what you would call pub-crawlers of major league calibre or I should have recognized them. Today, I believe I saw the woman in the neighborhood."

McGann dutifully wrote it down. He masked a growing disappointment. These seemed the flimsy suspicions of a wealthy neurotic. What Ronnie Tompkins wanted was a bodyguard, a brass-knuckled character with a pistol permit. But he decided to probe a bit deeper before bowing out.

"Anything more concrete, Mr. Tompkins?"

"Yes. In addition to these other things which I have mentioned, something occurred late this afternoon which made me decide to call you. I received a personal warning."

McGann's interest brightened perceptibly. "Who from?" "Frazier Farwell." The name was familiar to McGann but nevertheless he wrote it down. "He's a record player on an after-midnight radio program. The 'Can You Imagine Ballroom' or some such."

"I've heard of him," McGann said. "He's one of our better disc jockeys as we say around the soda fountain. He grooves a drastic plastic."

The dim figure leaned back in the vast leather chair. "I am not prepared to evaluate his contribution to the airwaves. It will be up to you to evaluate his contribution to the matter at hand."

McGann jotted briefly as the recent role of the radio performer was unfolded. Farwell was just one of many minor celebrities who over the years had attached themselves to the tail of the Tompkins' comet. Sometimes he joined a Tompkins' party at a nightclub, where nobody ever had been known to wrest the cheek from the host.

Farwell paid for this regular free-loading by dedicating radio numbers to Ronnie Tompkins and his bride of the moment. It was all good clean fun and wholesome publicity. He usually played a few turns of Mendelssohn's wedding march, followed by Guy Lombardo's Decora platter "After You're Gone." Nobody took offense.

McGann asked, "How did Farwell warn you?"

"He came here. He's here now. He was intoxicated and I put him to bed upstairs. My first impulse was to throw him out but in a way I've always been fond of Frazier. He's so good-natured about being a failure."

"But he said something which made you change your mind?"

"Yes. He was hardly coherent but it seems that somebody had approached him for information about me—somebody who couldn't possibly want to for any good. I was ready to dismiss it. Then I thought of the other incidents of which I've told you and made up my mind to investigate the whole business."

"He's been sleeping for a couple of hours now and it should be possible to get some sense out of him. I wish you'd go up and talk to him."

McGann slipped the notebook into his pocket. "All right, Mr. Tompkins, I'll see him. Where is he?"

"You'll find him in the rear bedroom on the third floor. Go right in. The house is yours, Mr. McGann. Meanwhile I have a few things to do here before going out to dinner." He laughed softly. "I think I'll be safe."

McGann rose. He was glad to get out of the strong light of the lamp. He turned at the door leading into the hallway and said, "I'd rather you didn't leave the house, though, until I come back. In fact, it wouldn't do any harm to lock this door. At least until we find out what's bothering Farwell."

"I'll take care of it."

me homemakers' institute says if women forget their groceries twice a week instead of every day they'd have a whole week a year for a vacation. Next question from the husbands: Who'd cook during the vacation?

Shucks, anybody knows if most women didn't get out of the house every day to buy groceries they wouldn't get out of the house period.

It should be in the marriage contract that a wife is entitled to a month's vacation with pay every year, but most fellows figure a potted petunia on Mother's Day about covers their obligation to the girl of their dreams.

But we just want to warn this homemakers' institute that he who steps over the kitchen threshold with a blueprint and a stop watch is in dangerous territory for an efficiency expert.

A woman runs her refrigerator the way she wants to run it and it's about the only thing her husband will let her run without her family is having for dinner.

saying "no, not that way dear."

Of course not all women are kitchen-minded. We never hear a lady lecture on the state of the world that we don't wonder what her family is having for dinner.

LONDON—The hand of fate often appears to be a pained one, and I am sitting here by the window of my second-story room in the Savoy, looking out on a bleak Sunday day and wondering why that hand shook the wrong way when it came to settling the fate of Louie the steward. I came across Louie on the way back from having watched the Grand National steeplechase at Liverpool; he was attached to the dining car of my train and he was a small, bespectacled man, amiable and given to the outlandish politeness that so many Britons are.

"I almost got to New York, sir," he said. "I was a fighter. Same vintage as Jackie (Kid) Berg, the Whitechapel Windmill. Remember 'im? 'Ad many fine fights in America, 'e did (Editor's note—and made many fine dollars). Well, sir, when I got to America, know what they did with me? Put me in Ellis Island, they did. Not for a day. Not for a week. For the 'ole six months my sis allowed."

"Couldn't get me a sponsor, I couldn't. Couldn't get anyone to vouch for me. 'Ad a friend in your Delancey street, but he couldn't or wouldn't speak up for me. So I sat out my six months on Ellis and then went back to London. That's how much I seen of your New York, sir." He looked up and grinned a bad-toothed grin. "Oh, well, that's the way it goes, sir, eh what?"

He tipped his hand to me and went briskly off to the train's kitchen, while I thought about all the money Kid Berg made in America because a friend somewhere in New York could and did speak up for him when his ship arrived. What was the idea behind that deal, fate? Speak up. The explanation better be a good one.

THIS WAS MY SECOND GRAND NATIONAL (add two Kentucky Derbies and 11 Belmont Stakes, and you have a man who has lived a full life), and I think I can be forgiven for not having a shilling on the winner, Nickel Coin. Only two of the 39 starters completed the four-and-one-half-mile course.

There is a sharp contrast between the Grand National, England's big race, and the Kentucky Derby. Down in Louisville, Derby Day is carnival time; many souls get plastered, or spend their time passing social pleasantries, and perhaps 10 per cent of the spectators see the horse race, or care about it.

At Aintree, where the National is run, there are 200,000 spectators—and almost down to the last man, the race and nothing else interests them. The horse, forgive the cliché, is king. I believe this was the original intention. The Derby just mislaid its purpose, somewhere along the line.

IT ALWAYS IS A TREAT TO CATCH UP on the English theater. I have to date seen The Little Hut, a completely moral comedy by a Frenchman in which Robert Morley, that sedate star of Edward, My Son in New York several seasons ago, has the time of his life mugging in broad farce, and The Seventh Veil, a rather ordinary drama by Muriel and Sydney Box (it was a movie some years ago) in which Ann Todd, the closest thing to Garbo (an alive Garbo) I have seen, gives a remarkable performance as a psycho-terror concert pianist.

The American musical plays Carousel and Kiss Me, Kate! are playing now in Piccadilly and doing well but I am told that the English disliked Mr. Roberts as being much too vulgar, and made short shrift of Detective Story. American cowboy movies seem to be playing all over England, to crowded houses. What this proves, I have no idea.

Monday Club Closes Season With Convention Reports And Program Of Music

Year's Activities Also Outlined

Mrs. E. S. Shane and Mrs. Kenneth Robbins, delegates to the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs' convention held in Akron recently, gave a report of the state meeting to members of Monday Club in Circleville Memorial Hall.

Being the last session of the year, a summation of the year's activities was heard along with the convention report.

Mrs. Shane and Mrs. Robbins reported that alert interest in state and national affairs was demonstrated by the 628 women attending the Akron conference.

One of the highlights of the conference was an address by a native of Chillicothe, Dr. Harley Lutz, professor emeritus of Princeton university, who chose as his topic, "Pay As You Go Or Else."

Another interesting speaker was Mrs. Induk Pakh, a native Korean, whose subject was, "My Country and My People." Mrs. Pakh is a graduate of Ewha college in Seoul, Wesleyan college in Georgia, and holds a master's degree from Columbia university.

Clyde F. Farnier, director of community forums for the Cleveland board of education, gave the main address. His subject was, "Build Freedom With Youth." He divided his address into three main topics: "Youths Difficulties"; "Opportunities Youth Seek"; and "Adult's Difficulties."

He advised helping youth by example; giving them faith in God, in themselves and in freedom.

A program of music followed the business meeting which was opened with Miss Eleanor Snyder singing, "Let My Song Find Your Heart," and "Over the Land Is April," both composed by Earnest Charles.

Monday Club chorus, directed by Mrs. James P. Moffitt, presented, "Dance of the Reed Flutes" and "Waltz of the Flowers" from the Nutcracker Suite by Tchaikovsky.

A piano quartet composed of Mrs. Joseph Adkins Jr., Mrs. Irene Reichelderfer, Mrs. R. C. McAlister and Mrs. Martin Cromley played, "Invitation to the Dance" by von Weber.

"Spring Cycle" by Mabel W. Daniels, sung by Monday Club chorus concluded the program. Mrs. McAlister was piano accompanist for the vocal music presented.

Golden Wedding Celebrated With Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Drum of Amanda Township held open house Sunday afternoon in celebration of their golden wedding anniversary.

Many friends and relatives called to extend congratulations and were greeted by Miss Winifred Drum and their names registered by Mrs. Karl Drum.

Granddaughters of the couple from Columbus and Stoutsville acted as hostesses for the affair and a grandson, Joel Phillips of Covington, took moving pictures of the honored couple and their guests.

The oldest daughter, Mrs. Everett Phillips, presided at the candle-light table which was centered with a three tiered wedding cake.

Guests were present for the occasion from Amarillo, Tex., Hamilton, Williamsport, Chillicothe, Galena, Westerville, Columbus, Ashville, Lancaster, Circleville, Stoutsville, Covington and Middletown.

Plenty Of Food Headed For Local Markets

There should be an abundance of fresh vegetables and protein foods on local markets this month.

Miss Genevieve Alley, Pickaway County home demonstration agent, said Wednesday that U.S. Department of Agriculture reports promise plenty for residents of the Midwest.

Fresh vegetables listed as plentiful in May are Spring greens of several kinds and lettuce, carrots, and asparagus.

Seasonally heavy Midwest egg production in May will provide plenty of eggs. Demand for eggs, however, has been heavy and cold storage stocks are still quite low, so egg prices while they will approach the year's low, may not drop as much as a year ago.

Other protein foods listed as plentiful in May are fresh or frozen fish, dry beans and peanut butter.

May normally is the peak month of lettuce shipments from California coastal areas. Growing conditions there have been favorable and production is expected to be larger than last year.

California's Imperial Valley will help supply carrots for markets in this part of the country in May. Other supplies will come from the Phoenix, Arizona, area. California also will continue to ship asparagus to our markets in May.

By the latter part of the month, however, Midwest states, especially Illinois, Iowa, and Michigan will add to these supplies. A variety of greens, including spinach, kale, turnip and beet tops, endive and escarole will be economical on May markets.

There were almost 13 million bushels of apples on hand in United States storages at the end of March. This is the one fruit the Department listed as plentiful and low-priced in May.

Some apples, still being processed, will contribute to heavy supplies of canned applesauce.

Milk production, which is heading toward the year's peak in June, will make plenty of cottage cheese available in May. Stocks of other varieties of cheese, though not so large as a year ago, totaled nearly 155 million pounds at the end of March.

A good trick with a shank end of ham is to cut it into two pieces lengthwise, so that you will have a boneless piece to slice for broiling, frying or baking, and a piece with the bone for simmering in water to make pea soup, etc. To perform this cutting trick, use a sharp knife and cut lengthwise of the shank, right along the bone to the end. If you don't want to make soup of the bone part, cook in water until meat is tender; then cut meat off bone to use in sandwiches, salads and hot dishes.

Ashville 8th Grader Gets High Score In State Test

Roger Harris of Ashville was Pickaway County's highest scorer during this year's statewide eighth grade test.

The youngster, son of Ashville Superintendent and Mrs. Walter Harris, scored 182 points out of a possible 200 points on the test, a portion of which was given recently in The Circleville Herald.

Eugene Wheeler of Ashville was next high in this year's eighth grade exams with a total of 178 points, while Larry Wing of Williamsport was third with 176.

A total of 10 county boys and girls ranked in the upper one percent of the state with their high marks.

In addition to the three high scorers, other youngsters in the upper one percent group are Dan Barth of Ashville, 170; Rebecca Dountz of Ashville, 168; Dale Puckett of Ashville, 167;

SAMUEL MILLER of Muhlenberg and Mary Anne Noecker of Walnut, 164 each; Charles Hines of Walnut, 162; and Gail Dunlap of Williamsport, 161.

County Superintendent George D. McDowell pointed out that this year's median for the county was 98, while last year's median was 101. A total of 301 pupils were tested.

Altogether, a total of 77 young-

1947 Marriage Ends; Mother Of 4 Asks Divorce

A divorce has been awarded in Pickaway County common pleas court to Edna L. Ball from Pern D. Ball.

The couple was married Feb. 3, 1947. They have no children. Judge William D. Radcliff found the husband guilty of gross neglect of duty. He awarded household furniture to the wife, an auto to the husband.

Also in common pleas court a divorce suit has been started by Bonnie M. Baker against James A. Baker.

The wife's petition states they were married July 18, 1936, in Greenup, Ky. They have four children. The petition accuses the husband of extreme cruelty and claims that the wife's health has been endangered and impaired because of it.

The wife asks for the divorce, custody of the children and real and personal property, including their four-room house on Lockbourne Route 1.

Captain Louis Now On Duty In Philippines

Capt. John D. Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Louis and husband of Mrs. Peggy Louis of New Holland, has arrived at his new overseas station with the U. S. Airforce in the Philippines.

The captain, who arrived in the islands late in March, is now assigned as a dental officer for the 18th Medical Group, Philippines Command (Airforce) and Thirteenth Airforce on Clark Airforce Base in Central Luzon.

Captain Louis entered the Airforce for the first time in March 1942. He served during World War II as a radar observer and bombardier instructor at MacDill AFB, Fla. After he was graduated by Ohio State university, he was stationed at Fort Lewis, Wash., and at Rapid City, AFB, South Dakota, as an oral surgeon.

Captain Louis reentered the service in January 1949.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

Very little that a young child sees or hears on television, radio or the movie screen stimulates him to create. What does he hear or see on radio, television or movie screen that stimulates him to amuse himself at drawing, painting or building and constructing with his hands while alone or in cooperation with other children?

As a rule, these passive amusements, requiring just two ears and two eyeballs, tend to divert him from self-amusement and creative fun, alone or with other children.

Even the child old enough to read naturally reads less, as a rule, as he looks and listens more.

But almost any parent realizes that good education of the child from the time he can sit up and begin to manipulate objects stimulates him to amuse himself at exploring, experimenting and creating with things he can handle and with lines, color and sounds he can make and, later, to have this amuse himself at creative fun with other children. Always, in his best education, he continues at self-amusement by creating with his hands and head, with help later on from the printed page.

SINCE TELEVISION, radio and the movie screen don't stimulate his creative urges much for self-amusement and active participating amusement with other children, where is he to get such desirable stimulation? From parents and teachers. Always wise parents and teachers have encouraged the child to create by drawing and coloring and painting and making things for fun with his hands, spinning yarns out of his head and dramatizing in all sorts of ways.

We parents should be grateful to the school for its stimulating to the child to create. We help the school in this direction as we encourage the youngster in his preschool years at self-amusement in creative ways and continue to encourage him in this direction after he enters school—as we stimulate him to color, draw, paint, and to put together blocks and other simple playthings with creative purpose; as we provide him with tools and materials for making things for fun and enjoy his creations. We fire the little child's imagination by reading to him and by listening affectionately to the many yarns he spins out of his little head. (My bulletins "Now Come the Fairies" and "Letting Little Children Learn" may be had by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this paper.)

We encourage him to make-believe fun alone or with other children, while we also provide him with good toys, tools and materials.

But even more important than materials and playthings to the child's development at creative play are parents and teachers who appreciate what he creates, and express enthusiasm over such.

Answering Parents' Questions
Q. Should children who go to church during the school year be expected to continue to do so during the summer vacation?
A. Yes; in case their parents go with them. It's curious how so many religious families take vacations from Sunday school and church all summer.

Q. Our daughter, 16, has always had an allowance which she has handled very well. She plans to have a job this summer. How should we expect her to use her earnings?
A. Prevail on her to budget her earnings with a good portion in savings or investment in clothing she will need next school year, allowing herself only a limited amount for mere luxury. Tragic for any youth to spend most of his or her earnings on passing pleasures.

Elinor Williams' Teen Tips

You don't have to look at a calendar to know that summer is around the corner. Letters from readers of this column are already asking "What about summer jobs?" for the long vacation ahead.

Today's job tips are for boys. Next we'll tackle the job deal for girls. Try these on for size, boys, choosing the one that is best suited to the possibilities in your community:

1—Weekly car wash. Perhaps you can go into business with a pal on this, because two can do this job faster than one, working out a good, quick, efficient system.

2—Weekly lawn cutting.
3—Garden weeding.
4—Packing orders in grocery and other types of stores.

5—Sweeping cellars and garages.
6—Daily or weekly grocery shopping for a regular list of "clients"—using their lists. Ask each client to write names of preferred brands, size or amount and approximate price on the list whenever possible. Then write down the actual price of each item on the list when you shop, so you'll have an accurate account of the money spent.

7—"Fill-in" jobs making deliveries of food, laundry, etc. while regular employees are on vacation. Larger organizations are on vacation. Larger organizations are the best possibilities for this, because they have more employees and more vacation absences.

2 Girl Scouts Observe Workings Of City Council

Two members of Pickaway County Girl Scouts Troop 9 Tuesday took a close look at the way the legislative branch of Circleville government conducts its affairs.

They were Girl Scout Shirley Dunlap, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dunlap of Williamsport, and Assistant Girl Scout Leader Jean Howell of 101 Reber avenue.

Miss Dunlap explained that she is working to acquire a Speaker's Badge. One of the requirements was that she attend a session of city council.

Jackson School Sets Year-End Activity Card

Year-end activities for the youngsters of Jackson Township school have been mapped out with less than a month of school remaining.

First of the closing activities planned for the school will be a junior-senior banquet May 11 in Pickaway Arms.

Following that will be baccalaureate services for the seniors May 13 in the high school auditorium, with the Rev. George Troutman of Circleville Trinity Lutheran church delivering the sermon.

Commencement exercises for the senior classmen will be at 8 p. m. May 16 in the school auditorium.

Valedictory address for the ceremony will be delivered by Coralee Huffer, while Mary Krimmel, president of the graduating group, is the class salutatorian.

Guest speaker for the ceremony will be the Rev. Fred Luchs of First Presbyterian church in Athens. Music will be presented by the school orchestra.

SUPERINTENDENT Robert Moyer will introduce the class during the program, while presentation of awards and diplomas will be made by County Superintendent George McDowell.

Members of the graduating class are: Mary Krimmel, Joan Kendall, Gladys Hulse, Charles Neff, Deanne Alexander, Bill Buskirk, Marvin Cooper, Coralee Huffer, Raymond Hulse, George List, Larry Peters and Dick Woods.

Final activity of the school for the year will be eighth grade commencement at 9:15 a. m. May 22.

A class of 19 eighth graders will be advanced into high school during the ceremony.

Speaker for the program will be County Superintendent McDowell, while awards will be made by Principal Don McCuskey. Diploma will be presented by Superintendent Moyer.

Valedictorian for the eighth grade class is Yvonne Gibson, with a perfect attendance record for the last three years, while Freida Holbrook is salutatorian.

East Franklin Parking Meter Problem Unsolved

Circleville city council Tuesday was still playing on-again off-again with the problem of parking meters on East Franklin street.

The city fathers instructed Safety Director C. O. Leist to remove a parking meter in front of the Dodge-Plymouth auto agency, and to move another farther west.

A few meetings ago the legislators were of the opinion that there were not enough meters on the street and instructed Leist to install more.

It was explained that the meter in front of the auto agency results in parked trucks blocking a driveway into the building.

They had as last Wednesday dinner guests, Mrs. Allie McKinley and Mrs. Kessie Steele of Orient and Mrs. Blanche Lucas of Harrisburg.

The April meeting of the WSCS was held at the church, on Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. Ulin McGhee, president, in charge of the business meeting. Meeting opened with a prayer by Rev. Taylor. A reading was given by Mrs. Joe Bush on spiritual life. Mrs. Earl Ater read a letter from Mrs. Reber, which resulted in it being voted on to send a donation to the Lancaster Camp Grounds and to a missionary fund. Further plans were discussed on repairing and redecorating the church in the near future. Mrs. Everette Hoskins, secretary of Christian Social Relations announced the Society will serve the Alumni Banquet on May 26. A program was then given by Mrs. Clarence Fox and Mrs. Warren Hobbie. Piano music played by Mrs. George LeVally. Installation of the new officers for next year was in charge of Rev. Thomas Taylor, who then gave the benediction. A new member, Mrs. Harry Morris was announced. Mrs. Earl Ater, Mrs. Charles Drake, Mrs. C. P. Clements and Mrs. Paul Peck served refreshments to 33 members and six guests.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. Scott
ROOM AND BOARD By Gene Ahern

Bond Maturity Data Given

Owners Have Two New Privileges

Cash Payment Still Offered

Americans now hold around 500 million Series E Savings Bonds, worth some $34.5 billion, present cash value, according to Judge William D. Radcliff, chairman of Pickaway County Savings Bonds Committee.

The United States Treasury sold the first Series E Savings Bonds ten years ago, on May 1, 1941. The bonds began to mature May 1, 1951, Judge Radcliff pointed out.

The first E Bonds were titled "Defense Savings Bond, Series E" until after Pearl Harbor when the title became "War Savings Bond", followed in 1946 by "U.S. Savings Bond." Since mid-January the Treasury Department has been referring to them as Defense Bonds.

However, under all these names it is the same Series E Savings Bond, the most widely owned security in the world.

About $1,966,000,000 of Series E Defense Bonds issued in 1941 are still outstanding and will mature month by month between now and the end of 1951.

In 1952-54 the amounts maturing will markedly increase, reflecting the heavy wartime sales of E Bonds in war loan drives and on the Payroll Savings Plan during 1942-44. In 1955, maturities will begin to come down to peacetime levels.

In a statement embodying these facts, Judge Radcliff reminds owners of Series E Bonds that under a recent act of Congress (H.R. 2268), they now have three options at maturity, two of which are new privileges:

(1) Cash: the owner of any Series E Bond may receive, if he wishes, full cash payment by presenting his matured bond to any qualified bank or other paying agent. This has not changed. The new options are:

(2) Extension: the owner may retain the matured E Bond and for a period not to exceed ten additional years the cash value of the bond will increase each six months, interest accruing at the rate of 2½ percent simple interest for 7½ years, and then at an increase rate for the remaining 2½ years, to bring the aggregate interest return to approximately 2.9 percent, compounded semi-annually (the average rate as for the original ten-year period.)

THIS CHOICE requires no action by the owner of the bond; any E Bond which is not turned in for cash at its original maturity date will be extended automatically until such time as the owner does present it for payment.

At the end of the extended period of ten years, interest ceases. The extended E Bond may be redeemed at any time for the full face value plus interest which has accrued at the new rates.

(3) Exchange: those who prefer to receive interest as current income, rather than having it accrue and add to the cash value of the bond, may exchange maturing E bonds in amounts of $500 or multiples thereof for Series G Savings Bonds.

Series G Bonds are registered bonds issued at face amount (sell at par.) They bear interest at the rate of 2½ percent per annum, payable

Council OKs Special Water Line Running To City Sewage Plant

Circleville city council Tuesday passed an ordinance appropriating $1,200 from the water works operating fund to install a three-inch water main from West Ohio street to the sewage disposal plant.

Ervin Leist, manager of the water department and sewage disposal plant, explained to the city fathers that the sewage plant has never had city water piped into it.

All the water used by the plant comes from a 28-foot well, he said. And since 1949 the sewage department has been having trouble with the well. The trouble has increased in recent weeks.

"There is some evidence that the well has shifted," Leist went on. "This shift has been just enough so that the pump shaft does not center on the motor. It makes considerable noise, and there is a possibility that the shaft will break later on."

RECENTLY, LEIST went on, the well has been producing "gray water," a possible indication of quicksand.

To flush the well and repair the pump would cost an estimated $1,015, he said, adding that the board of public utilities has concluded that the better solution would be to pipe city water to the sewage disposal plant.

"The three inch line would be connected to a fire hydrant in front of the old Home and Hospital on West Ohio street," he explained. "About 810 feet of pipe would be required.

"But the line would be of no value to the water department for further taps, and the board feels that the water department should be reimbursed for putting in the line."

He estimated that during summer months the sewage plant would consume from $30 to $40 worth of water at present rates. Council agreed to the necessity for the new water line, and passed the ordinance appropriating funds to install it.

But the legislators balked at a semi-annually from issue date until their maturity in 12 years.

There is a time limit after maturity of E Bonds for exchanging them for G Bonds; ask at any bank for details. G Bonds may be redeemed at any time after six months from the issue date on one calendar month's notice from the owner.

If issued in exchange for maturing E Bonds, they will be redeemable for full face value whenever they are presented for payment—a new privilege.

The options outlined apply to all outstanding E Bonds, as they mature and will apply to all new Series E Savings Bonds issued in the future, Judge Radcliff added.

Lions Clubs Book District Parley

Circleville's newest civic club—the Lions—is slated to be represented Sunday when Lions District 13-B, which embraces 37 clubs in Franklin, Licking, Fairfield, Pickaway, Perry and Muskingum Counties, holds a convention at Buckeye Lake.

Candidates for district offices will be presented during the afternoon session. During the banquet scheduled for 6 p. m. beauty queen from the various clubs will vie for the district queen distinction.

Highlighting the evening's entertainment will be the nationally famous Harmonaires and a speech by Dr. Floyd Faust.

second ordinance authorizing the sewage department to reimburse the water department for installation of the line.

LEIST EXPLAINED that the reimbursement proposal was made because the water department would get no return on the water supplied to the sewage plant. The water would be supplied free.

Councilman George Crites objected to that, too. He said he did not think it could be done, pointing out that the mortgage revenue bond ordinance passed several years ago to finance the water department forbids free water to the city.

Leist said the only free water being supplied was for a continuously running drinking fountain on the first floor of City Building and to the Red Cross.

Councilman Ray Cook argued that a water meter should be installed to enable the city to determine the exact amount of water supplied to the sewage plant. Leist had suggested that no meter be installed. He said the cost would be about $500.

Councilman Ray Anderson opined that the question of installing a meter should rest on whether the water was to be supplied free.

Upshot of the discussion was a decision to install the three-inch line, and to hold off on the question of reimbursement and payment for water until the matter can be investigated more thoroughly.
